

ICOMAM Conference War and Peace, Fear and Happiness

Ljubljana, Slovenia
30 September - 3 October 2018
Pre-Conference Tour 28 - 29 September 2018

Organizers: ICOMAM and Forum of Slavic Cultures

Co-organizers in Slovenia: ICOM Slovenia, National Museum Slovenia, Slovenian Armed forces Military Museum, The Park of Military History in Pivka.

Conference Topic

The relevance of culture and in particular of cultural assets as catalysts for the formation of open, tolerant and cohesive societies has been also reinforced by a growing attention of the public opinion for preservation issues seen as a necessity to develop a better quality of life and an improvement of transnational cooperation.

In the year of the European Cultural Heritage Year 2018 ICOMAM will focus on the current historical memory of the wars of the 20th century.

Our topics will focus on: War and Peace, Fear and Happiness

The wars waged with them and abandoned in their environments for future generations.

The interpretation of heritage is considered dissonant when different groups attribute different stories to a certain object or landscape. «Dissonant heritage» is the heritage «that hurts» or that recall past events not easy to be reconciled with visitors' values and everyday experience. These objects are relevant evidence of certain periods, however, they are nowadays either neglected or cancelled or reinterpreted in misleading ways in which the political discourse is predominant with no insight into the aesthetic or cultural values (if any) and without a clear strategy to make of them a useful complex of historic resources for the understanding of difficult moments of European history.
