Launch of International Museum Day 2016
Museums and Cultural Landscapes

The worldwide community of museums will celebrate International Museum Day on and around 18 May 2016.

The theme of 2016 International Museum Day will be Museums and Cultural Landscapes, which is also the theme of the General Conference of the International Council of Museums (ICOM), to be held in Milan, Italy from 3 to 9 July 2016.

The theme Museums and Cultural Landscapes is at the heart of discussions within many international organisations concerned with cultural and natural heritage, including ICOM.

It highlights the responsibility of museums not only to their collections, but also to their environment, including the cities, villages and communities to which they belong, and calls on them to promote and communicate about both their own collections and the cultural and natural heritage around them. Museums of all kinds can contribute to sustainable development by strengthening ties between people and their environment.

Museums and Cultural Landscapes asks museums to participate in raising awareness, making them ambassadors of a geographic area and engaging them in actively protecting cultural and natural heritage.

We invite all of the world’s museums – whether large or small, urban or rural, or dedicated to the arts or sciences – to join us next 18 May in celebrating the complex link between people and their environment.

The International Council of Museums (ICOM) established International Museum Day in 1977 to increase public awareness of the role of museums in the development of society, and it has been steadily gaining momentum ever since. In 2015, International Museum Day garnered record-breaking participation with more than 35,000 museums hosting events in some 145 countries.

About the International Council of Museums (ICOM)

The International Council of Museums (ICOM), created in 1946, is a worldwide organisation of museums and museum professionals. ICOM is committed to promoting and protecting natural and cultural heritage, present and future, tangible and intangible. With more than 35,000 members in 135 countries, the ICOM network is made up of museum professionals from a wide range of museum and heritage related disciplines.

ICOM promotes standards of excellence in the museum field, in particular through its ICOM Code of Ethics for Museums, a standard-setting tool for museums, which includes basic principles for museum governance, the acquisition and disposal of collections, and rules for professional conduct. ICOM’s other activities include fighting illicit traffic in cultural goods and promoting risk management and emergency preparedness to protect world cultural heritage in the event of natural or man-made disasters.

In order to carry out these activities, ICOM partners with entities such as ICCROM, INTERPOL, the World Customs Organisation, the World Intellectual Property Organization, and maintains a long-standing collaboration with UNESCO. The UNESCO-ICOM Museum Information Centre, created in 1946, gathers the most comprehensive collection of ICOM publications including ICOM News, Museum International, ICOM Red Lists, publications by International Committees and conference proceedings.

ICOM’s commitment to culture and knowledge sharing is reinforced by its 30 International Committees, which are dedicated to a wide range of museum specialities and conduct advanced research in their respective fields for the benefit of the museum community. The organisation’s International and National Committees, Regional Alliances and Affiliated Organisations hold conferences and symposiums worldwide that focus on pre-defined themes with a view to fostering exchange among museum professionals of all nationalities. In addition, ICOM organises International Museum Day each year, a worldwide event held on and around 18 May, to increase public awareness of the role of museums in the development of society.

International Museum Day

What is International Museum Day?

Every year since 1977, ICOM has organised International Museum Day (IMD), which represents a unique moment for the international museum community. On this day, participating museums plan creative events and activities related to the International Museum Day theme, engage with their public and highlight the importance of the role of museums as institutions that serve society and its development.

The objective of International Museum Day is to raise awareness of the fact that, “Museums are an important means of cultural exchange, enrichment of cultures and development of mutual understanding, cooperation and peace among peoples.” Organised on and around 18 May each year, the events and activities planned to celebrate International Museum Day can last a day, a weekend or a whole week.

Participation in International Museum Day is growing among museums all over the world. In 2015, more than 35,000 museums participated in the event in some 145 countries.

A little bit of history

Crusade for Museums

Before officially creating International Museum Day, ICOM gathered the international museum community for a 1951 meeting called Crusade for Museums, to discuss the theme “Museums and Education.” The idea for International Museum Day was inspired by the framework for museum accessibility that was developed at this meeting.

The 1977 Resolution

International Museum Day was officially established in 1977 with the adoption of a resolution during the ICOM General Assembly in Moscow, Russia to create an annual event “with the aim of further unifying the creative aspirations and efforts of museums and drawing the attention of the world public to their activity.” International Museum Day was meant to convey the message that “Museums are an important means of cultural exchange, enrichment of cultures and development of mutual understanding, cooperation and peace among peoples.”

Uniting the museum community on one theme

As the event attracted more and more museums, and increasingly favoured diversity in unity, ICOM suggested a theme for the first time in 1992: Museums and Environment.

Creation of a universal identity

In 1997, ICOM launched the first official poster of the event on the theme of fighting illicit traffic in cultural goods. The poster was adapted by 28 countries.

Strengthening communication

In 2011, institutional partners, a website and communications kit for International Museum Day were introduced, marking a turning point for the event. ICOM was also patron of the European Night of Museums for the first time that year, an event that takes place on the Saturday closest to 18 May each year.
International Museum Day 2016

Each year’s International Museum Day theme is proposed by ICOM’s network and aims to promote museum issues within society.

The theme of the 2016 event is Museums and Cultural Landscapes.

A combination of both nature and history, a cultural landscape is a changing and constantly evolving territory, the product of a specific geological identity and transformations made by time and people. Both individuals and communities are responsible for protecting and enhancing these landscapes.

These tasks also fall under the duty of museums, which hold objects and items that serve as both material and intangible legacies of territories both large and small.

The theme Museums and Cultural Landscapes makes museums responsible for their landscapes, asking them to contribute knowledge and expertise and take an active role in their management and upkeep. The primary mission of museums is to oversee heritage, whether it be inside or outside their walls. Their natural vocation is to expand their mission and implement their own activities in the open field of cultural landscape and heritage that surrounds them and for which they can assume varying degrees of responsibility.

The vision of a museum engaged primarily in conserving, exhibiting and communicating about its own collections is being replaced by another that is more respectful of the nature of an institution that also conducts research and produces, acquires, develops and shares knowledge of the surrounding territory and provides the communities who live there with a different way of looking at their landscape. By assuming responsibilities that are not limited to their collections, they are also encouraged to expand, enhance and increase their collections and their heritage of knowledge and expertise.

Highlighting the link between museums and cultural heritage enhances the idea of museums as territorial centres involved in actively protecting the cultural landscape.

Because they are responsible for the surrounding landscape, museums' missions also include the protection and conservation of the environmental heritage, in order to promote the respectful development of its identity, working jointly and in collaboration with all entities – both public and private – that hold a variety of interests in that heritage. At the same time, a museum that is responsible for its landscape assumes its role as a centre for interpreting the surrounding heritage and territory, by promoting its knowledge and making residents and visitors aware of the values on which they are built and by asking them to participate in their conservation, promotion and enhancement.

By their very nature, landscapes are constantly evolving and cannot be frozen or made into museums. Protecting and conserving them prevents these transformations from destroying, deforming or degrading their identity. Museums can make a significant contribution to the administration of a territory that respects the value of its landscape, in the form of knowledge about the territory, its heritage and its landscape, through the protection, conservation and interpretation of cultural heritage both inside and outside their walls, through active participation in public and urban policies, and through the definition and implementation of landscape policies.
Your key role as a museum

To ensure International Museum Day fulfils its ambitions, we need your help!

You are the ambassadors of International Museum Day. Thanks to the activities that you organise and the strong connections you develop with your public, this event continues to be a success year after year.

In addition to the activities you plan, your participation in International Museum Day is an opportunity for you to:

- Implement partnerships (p. 15) with schools, associations, other museums, etc. to promote the event as a moment of sharing and collaboration;

- Use and disseminate the graphic materials of the event (p. 12), in order to spread the news of your activities efficiently throughout the world;

- Spread information about International Museum Day to the public via your web spaces (website, social media, etc.);

- Send a press release about International Museum Day or organising a press conference as a means to ensure the visibility of your museum and of the event;

- Gain international visibility about your activities before and after the event: by sharing information about your International Museum Day activities with ICOM, allowing us to spread the news throughout our network and beyond through social networks and our website dedicated to the event. It also allows us to enrich our archives with International Museum Day activities from each year’s celebration.

Share your activities on our interactive International Museum Day map, available since 2015!

Thanks to a partnership between ICOM and Semantika, museums now have access to a simplified, user-friendly interface they can use to share and communicate about their International Museum Day activities and events on an interactive map.

Museums! Tell the whole world about your International Museum Day activities by putting them on the map. Thanks to your contribution, visitors will be able to find International Museum Day activities near them.
How to organise your International Museum Day

International Museum Day draws the attention of both the general public and museum professionals around the world. We hope that you will plan your own activities for the 2016 edition of the event, following the general principles of International Museum Day and that the examples of past International Museum Day activities, be they original or conventional, with limited budget or broad-based activities, will provide inspiration for your own preparations.

We recommend that you follow eight important steps:

1. Target a specific public
   Regular visitors? A new public? Socially-disadvantaged persons? Specific public: children, teenagers, senior citizens, handicapped persons, etc.? In the next chapter, you will see examples of activities that target different publics.

2. Define your objectives
   To reach a new public? To attract various types of visitors? To enhance the museum’s visibility? To highlight your participation in the community? To be heard by public authorities? To make your institution known to potential partners?

3. Position your museum
   The objectives you set can also be related to the positioning of your museum. International Museum Day helps to show the importance of museums in society and to highlight their different aspects. You need therefore to find the positioning that best suits your institution.
   Is it an innovative museum? A museum that listens to social issues? A dynamic museum? A museum in contact with the public? A museum that generates tourism?

4. Forge institutional partnerships and sponsorships
   International Museum Day is an opportunity to create local, national or international partnerships, regarding anything from collections, to mediation or financing. Collaboration can be implemented with other museum professionals, other museums, associations, private companies, and more.

5. Develop a precise budget
   International Museum Day’s activities can be organised in large structures as well as small institutions. The necessary human and financial resources will also depend on the visibility you choose to give to the event.

6. Create an unexpected programme
   In the next chapter, we will give you some ideas with examples of successful International Museum Day activities in the past. An unexpected activity programme is key to your success!

7. Develop a communications and promotion strategy
   We have developed a set of communications tools (p. 12) to help you implement your strategy. ICOM and its network can also be one of your communication channels.

8. Make a post-event evaluation
   It is important for you to analyse the success of your International Museum Day and its effective impact. It is therefore essential to define criteria of success depending on your objectives. Some examples of good performance indicators include: attendance, creation of long-term partnerships and the number of media sources that diffused information about the event.
Create your activity programme

International Museum Day is an occasion to honour museum audiences and to offer a wide range of special activities, depending on your target public.

It is best to define your activity programme in relation to the theme suggested for International Museum Day 2016: Museums and cultural landscapes.

Examples of activities for a general public

- Free entry or free guided visits
  Free entry is an option, but the financial cost that it generates must be taken into account. A free entry policy should be supported by an interesting educational programme to attract the public to your museum.

- Discounts on some services offered by the museum
  Johannesburg Art Gallery in South Africa offered a 10% discount on publications and on the Association of Museum Friends’ membership fee for 18 May. (2012)

- Open day, longer opening hours or late-night openings
  Activities organised in European museums for European Night of Museums are excellent examples.

- Visits of storage areas or scholarly research collections; display of recently restored collections

- Exhibitions, activities, conferences or guided tours based on the International Museum Day theme
  The “Sc'Arti in Mostra” exhibition, organised and promoted by the province of Avellino, in Italy, was the product of an art contest inspired by the themes of reusing and recycling waste through art. The exhibition, open to the public, supported a culture of recycling. (2015)

- Practical workshop or visits led by a museum professional
  Bank of Canada’s Currency Museum in Ottawa organised meetings between conservators and visitors/collectors (of stamps, bottle caps, comics, etc.) to share their passion. (2013)

- Meeting with partners, fundraising events

- Inaugurations, openings of new museum space
  Verkehrsmuseum (transport museum) in Dresden, Germany inaugurated the “Adventure Flying Lab” and the new educational programme on air travel. (2012)

- Special cultural activities: concerts, theatre or dance shows, artistic performances, films screening, etc.
The Uganda Museum in Kampala encouraged visitors to take a plant home or plant a tree at the museum to do their part in creating a sustainable environment. The National Forestry Authority donated trees to the cause. (2015)

Unusual visits
In Peru, the Pachacamac Site Museum scheduled an outdoor interactive project called “Paint and Identify in the Pintado Temple” to remind visitors of the paintings that once decorated the monument. (2015)

Activities based on interaction using, for example, social media or virtual visits, etc.
Sharjah Museums in the United Arab Emirates carried out an Instagram project called #heartifact, inviting the public to photograph objects that are meaningful to them and post them along with a short description. The museum then created a collage of the images and shared it with the public on International Museum Day. (2014)

Games, contests, awarding of prizes
The Pakistan Museum of Natural History in Islamabad held two competitions, one rewarding the best photograph, the other the best drawing on the theme of nature. (2013)

All-day tour to several museums of your region
In Puebla, Mexico, a bike tour was organised with explanations on the history of the city’s museums. (2013)

Activities “outside the walls”
In Itu, Brazil, the Museu da Energia organised an event called Arte no Beco (Art in the Alleyway), bringing the museum to the street to raise awareness on the significance of museums and heritage preservation. (2014)

Examples of activities to...

Target professionals and academics
International Museum Day can be a great occasion for professional get-togethers. Some possible professional activities include:

- Professional meetings in the museum or through ICOM’s National Committees
- Conferences, colloquiums, seminars, roundtables, task forces, debates, international forums
- Discussions about museum operations, such as inventory, security issues, etc.
- Discussions about legislation and cultural policies
- Promotion of the ICOM Code of Ethics for Museums and distribution of the document
- Twinning of museums on a regional, national and international level
- Organisation of exhibition exchanges
- Creation of national and international cooperation programmes
- Partnership with university centres
- Publish articles on the theme in specialised journals, newsletters, information letters, etc.
Target young children and teenagers

Your museum is encouraged to create educational programmes to help raise awareness among young generations about the role of museums in society. To do so, it could be useful to contact schools and decide together on a pedagogical programme suitable for the theme “Museums for a sustainable society.”

You could, for example:
- Create a learning kit for teachers (educational cards, brochures, tools for activities...);
- Organise activity workshops such as role-plays, competitions, treasure hunts;
- Create a visitor programme adapted to children;
- Partner with young people to launch an exhibition on the theme of sustainability;
- Develop a twin programme between your museum and a learning institute.
- Tip: Teenagers may be more likely to take an interest in interactive exhibitions and activities that include museum experts who can reply to questions about the museum.

Communications tools at your disposal

Official poster and its variations (postcard and web banner)

Each year, ICOM creates an International Museum Day poster, as well as a postcard and web banner, linked to the theme of the year, enabling participating museums to illustrate the theme and to attract visitors with an appealing design.

For the 2016 poster, we wanted to highlight a multiplicity of cultural landscapes. These territories, composed of varied elements, create mosaics which are beautiful in their diversity. This idea of a composite blending is reflected in the 2016 poster, showing that the richness of a cultural landscape comes from the combination of nature and culture. The poster design highlights mosaics, which are a part of our daily lives and heritage and make up our cultural landscape. The non-coloured parts invite viewers to imagine their own version of the poster, making them actors in the constantly evolving cultural landscape.

You can download the poster, the postcard and the web banner for 2016 on the International Museum Day website: http://imd.icom.museum

New! This year, the postcard will also be issued in a version visitors can colour! Download the postcard to allow your visitors to create their own version of the postcard.

In 2015, thanks to you, the poster was available in 38 different language versions. This year, ICOM Committees will assist us in providing you with International Museum Day poster for 2016 and additional tools in your own language(s).

If you wish to use the poster in a language that is not available, do not hesitate to contact your ICOM National Committee.

We invite you to print and hang the poster in your museum during International Museum Day. You can also adapt this image in many ways and on any media, according to your wishes. Warning: you cannot use this image for commercial purposes.

You can also use the poster graphics and modify their format to fit your needs. Send an email to imd@icom.museum to get a version of InDesign and make your modifications.

In order to disseminate and archive your creations for our records, we would be grateful if you could send us any modified designs made from the International Museum Day 2016 image.

- Leaving a comment or a post on the Facebook page

Finally, if you are on Twitter, you may publish your International Museum Day activities with the hashtag: #MuseumDay and mention us @ICOMOfficiel
Find financial partners

You can look for three different kinds of support:

- Financial support: financial aid for the everyday functioning of a structure or for a special event such as International Museum Day. This support can come from private companies or public administrations.

- In-kind sponsorship: a company can donate products for your event, such as for a reception, or it can print or disseminate the leaflets of your event free of charge.

- Skills sponsorship: a company can make its staff available to you free of cost, for example, the communications department. This kind of sponsorship is on the rise in particular for educational programmes.

To give visibility to your partners, you may offer to:

- Insert their logo in all the communications tools created for the event and particularly in the poster.

- Insert information about the partner in the press kit and press releases.

- Organise the International Museum Day launch jointly with your partners.

- Invite partners to participate in your activity programme or to disseminate documents during your International Museum Day event.

- Organise a reception for networking purposes, if you have a number of sponsors.

- Publish the company’s advertisements in one of your communication outlets.
The European Museum Forum (EMF)

The European Museum of the Year Award 2016 will be celebrated on 16 May at the Riverside Museum in Glasgow, United Kingdom.

Since September 2013, ICOM has collaborated with the European Museum Forum (EMF), which organises the European Museum of the Year Award (EMYA) each year.

Established the same year as International Museum Day, EMYA is awarded to a museum that has attracted and welcomed its visitors using high museum standards and innovative approaches. This award values museums whose development and innovation in terms of communication, presentation and interpretation have impacted museum standards within Europe.

This event encourages excellence in European museums and is an opportunity for networking and debating contemporary museum issues.

Website: http://www.europeanmuseumforum.info

European Night of Museums

Since 2011, ICOM has been sponsoring the European Night of Museums, which is celebrated every year on the Saturday just before International Museum Day.

This year, the European Night of Museums will be held during the night of 21 to 22 May 2016. Created in 2005 by the French Ministry for Culture and Communication, the event inspires museums to open their doors to the public until 1:00 a.m. and free of charge. By welcoming the public at night, museums provide visitors with a new perspective on their collections, applying a more creative and sensory approach.

Last year, museums from 33 European countries mobilised to make the 10th edition of the event a magical one for the many night owls who attended. Over the course of the night, various activities are planned, bringing in a young public that may be more difficult to reach during traditional museum hours.

Semantika

Just as in 2015, the 2016 interactive map of International Museum Day events will be created by Semantika, a global provider of IT solutions for the cultural heritage sector with a record number of technological innovations, intelligent designs and strategic partnership agreements. Semantika is an expert in the development and integration of web and mobile applications, particularly Museums.EU and Museu.ms, which have made global heritage available to an international audience.
